SAT and ACT Tips

Colleges definitely require that you take a writing portion of a test. For the SAT it's mandatory, and for the ACT it's optional, I suggest that you take it anyway! FYI: For the "New" SAT writing portion of the test, the essay only accounts for 30% of the score and grammar counts for 70%. Study your grammar rules! The SAT test will have 10 sections. The essay will always be the first section of the test. It is suggested that you "back up" your essay with literary and historical references instead of personal anecdotes. Since topics are general, keep 4 classic books and 4 "moments" in history as support. A study from an MIT prof said that, "the longer the essay, the higher the score."
